Brit awards 2018 stormzy performance

Rapper Stormzy used his appearance at the BRIT Awards to call out British Prime Minister Theresa May for dealing with the Grenfell Tower fire. On the pask: Yo Theresa May, where's the money for Grenfell? In response, the Prime Minister's spokesman insisted she was absolutely committed to helping those affected by the tragedy. Stormzy picked up two awards at Wednesday night's event in London.Grime star Stormzy took home two BRIT Awards on Wednesday night at london's O2 - and used her time in the spotlight to attack British Prime Minister Theresa May for her handling of the Grenfell Tower apartment building fire that killed 71 people. Stormzy, whose real name is Michael Omani, used the performance after winning the rap word award to Theresa May, where is the money for Grenfell? What, you thought we forgot about Grenfell? It rained on the singer during the performance, which also included his songs Blinded by Your Grace and Big For Your Boots. He trappeded you: You criminals, and you have a face to call us savages, you should do some prison time, you should pay some damages, you should burn your house down and see if you can handle it. The singer also went on to attack the Daily Mail newspaper, suggesting the paper should suck my d---. Reaction to the performance has been overwhelmingly positive, with countless Twitter users - even those disliking the rapper's music - backing Stormzy for his statement.—Akeeb.A (@AkeebLDN) February 21, 2018-Florentina (@Flo3241) February 21, 2018—Shelly (@ShellyAsquith) February 21, 2018-Ade Akins (@ImAdeAkins) February 21, 2018 Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn also praised Stormzy - who backed him at last year's general election - for his strong performance. Jeremy Corbyn (@jeremycorbyn) On February 22, 2018Stormzy's complaint echoes the complaints of survivors at Grenfell who said they saw reports of large donations in the media but received little support. A month after the fire £20 million was raised, but less than £1 million of it was spent, according to the BBC. However, in an update last month, government figures said the money was largely spent in the meantime. £20.9 million out of a total of £26.5 million was used, the figures said. Responding to Stormzy's speech, on Thursday morning a spokesman for the Prime Minister insisted she was absolutely committed to supporting those affected by the Grenfell fire, adding: 'The Prime Minister has been very clear that Grenfell is an unimaginable tragedy that should never be allowed to happen again. A public inquiry has been set up by the Prime Minister to find out what happened so tragically wrong and why people haven't been listening for so many years. She has met with families and survivors on numerous occasions. The John Phillips/Getty South London singer picked up both the British male solo artist and British album of the year award. The full list of winners can be viewed here. Stormzy reached BRIT double this week, picked up the award for British male solo artist and best British album before closing the ceremony with a performance that focused on Prime Minister Theresa May and the Daily Mail. He has since shared a petition on Twitter calling on May to take action as part of the Grenfell Tower inquiry. Grime MC beat Ed Sheeran, Liam Gallagher, Loyle Carner and Rag'n'Bone Man to pick up their first award, later winning the biggest award of the night despite fierce competition from Dua Lipa and Sheeran. With the rain falling, Stormzy called May and the Mail during her speech, delivering the lyrics in a new freestyle, Theresa May, where is the money for Grenfell? / What did you think we just forgot about Grenfell? and suggests that the Daily Mail suck. Freestyle came during performances of his hits 'Blinded By Your Grace' and 'Big For Your Boots'. @Stormzy1 two prizes #Brits tonight. Here's his absolutely chilling performance. Stormzy won the British male solo artist and best British album, as well as delivering a triumphant final performance. Dua Lipa, meanwhile, took home The Woman solo artist and British Breakthrough Act. Presenting her first award to Stranger Things star Millie Bobby Brown and Kylie Minogue, Lipa said during her acceptance speech: I want to thank every single woman who was on this stage in front of me and gave girls like me a place to be inspired and [someone] insight into and allow us to dream. Here are more women on these stages, winning these awards and taking the world. Little Mix presented the British Male Solo Artist award to Stormzy, who said, Thank God, that's why I'm here to do what I do. Foo Fighters picked up Best International Group, their fifth BRIT Award to date. Dave Grohl paid tribute to the UK in his acceptance speech. Rag'n'Bone Man won best British single for 'Human'. He thanked everyone in Brighton and everyone who has waved his back over the years. The international male solo artist went to Kendrick Lamar, beating Drake and Beck. Dua Lipa picked up her second award of the night in the form of the British Breakthrough Act. She brought her younger brother and sister on stage with her and told fans to believe in magic. Lorde won the International Female Solo Artist and sent a video message. Gorillaz won best British group. Harry Styles took home British Artist Video of the Year for his 'Sign Of The Times' clip. Stormzy won the biggest award of the night, picking up the British album of the year for 'Gang Signs and Prayer'. During his acceptance speech, he said he put everything on the record, adding, I had nothing after. In november's Budget, Chancellor Philip Hammond said an extra £28 million would go to help victims of the Grenfell fire. He said the funds would go to Kensington and Chelsea Council in west London - where the tower is - and would pay for mental health services and regeneration. The council said the money would support mental health services in the area, along with existing NHS agencies. It would also pay for a new community space and a refurbishment of the Lancaster West estate in west London.Image captionStormzy said he wanted to use his voice to say something bigger than jaStormzy spoke to Newsbeat after the show about rap and a reference to Grenfell.He said: I didn't want to just come here as an artist like 'It's a tumultuous show' [and] clean up for the Brits - it's all about me. That's bigger than me [and] if I use my voice to say something that's bigger than me. I don't want it to be about me. It's not about me - it's about Grenfell and it's about all the things I said in that text. This is bigger than me.
